

Social Security Program

The Social Security program—Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance (OASDI)—provides monthly benefits to workers and their families when earnings stop or are reduced because the worker retires, dies, or becomes disabled. The amount of the worker's retirement insurance (old-age) or disability benefit is based on the worker's level of earnings in employment or self-employment covered by the Social Security program. The benefit amount for an auxiliary or survivor beneficiary is based on a percentage of the worker's benefit. Monthly benefits are payable to retired workers at age 65 (reduced benefits at 62) or to disabled workers at any age. Auxiliary and survivor beneficiaries must generally meet an age, a disability, or child care requirement.

Nationally, in December 1998 benefits were paid to 44,246,000 persons. This number included 27,511,000 retired workers, 5,214,000 widows and widowers, 4,698,000 disabled workers, 3,054,000 wives and husbands, and 3,769,000 children. Social Security beneficiaries represented 16.0 percent of the total population and 91.0 percent of the population 65 or older.

Monthly benefits averaged $780 for retired workers; $749 for nondisabled widows and widowers; $733 for disabled workers; and $386 for wives and husbands of retired and disabled workers. Average payments for children of deceased workers were $510; for children of retired workers, $358; and for children of disabled workers, $208.

Supplemental Security Income Program

Supplemental Security Income (SSI) is a Federal cash assistance program that provides monthly payments to low-income aged, blind, and disabled persons in the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and the Northern Mariana Islands. The program is based on nationally uniform eligibility standards and payment levels. The Federal SSI payment is determined by the recipient's countable income, living arrangement, and marital status. As of January 1999, the maximum monthly Federal SSI payment for an individual living in his or her own household and with no other countable income is $500, and for a couple, $751.

A State may supplement the payment levels of all or selected categories of recipients. These supplemental payments may be administered by the State or the Social Security Administration.

In December 1998, 6,566,069 persons received federally administered SSI payments including 1,331,782 aged, and 5,234,287 who were disabled or blind. A total of 2,032,983 recipients were aged 65 or older, 3,646,020 were 18 to 64, and 887,066 were under age 18.
